

BACK TO SCHOOL SALES

Summer Sounds drew to an official close last Sunday (oh no). But wait! There's more!

Scotty's Taxi presents a Young Traditions bonus concert in the free Summer Sounds series in Highgate Municipal Park on Sunday evening at 7 p.m. With step dancer Ann Whiting, fiddlers Frank Heyburn and Catherine Fortier, caller Mark Sustic on bass, members of Fiddleheads, and more, it will be an evening of roots music and dance.

Ann Whiting brings Appalachian clogging, also known as flatfooting, the percussive step dancing that accompanies old-time southern music, to the stage. Frank Heyburn is a renowned fiddler and teacher with regular appearances at concerts and dances around the state. Mark Sustic spends most of his time on "things that fall under the folk/traditional music umbrella.

"We're not exactly sure what will happen at the concert," Mr. Sustic said, "but we know it will be fun!"

Just before the concert, stop by for the All Arts-Summer Sounds Social in the Park starting at 6:30 p.m. The social hour is a chance to visit with friends and eat some delicious desserts.

The Summer Sounds concerts are sponsored by the Town of Highgate and the All Arts Council, and underwritten by Chevalier Drilling, Desorcie's Market, Drummac Septic Service, O. C. McCuin and Sons, Ray's Extrusion Dies and Tubing, and Scotty's Taxi.

The community based All Arts Council brings the performing arts to northwestern Vermont. The concerts are always on Sunday evenings, always at 7 p.m., always in Highgate Municipal Park, and always free. Bring a blanket or a lawn chair as you settle in to enjoy outdoor family music and festivities. The rain site is the Highgate United Methodist Church.
